

Employee Assistance General Counselling Service

CatholicCare's primary office is located at 35 Tower Road, New Town. There are also offices in Launceston, Devonport, Burnie, Bridgewater, and Georgetown.

Each site offers a full-service, with professional counselling rooms and qualified permanent counselling practitioners in attendance. CatholicCare also has the ability to deliver services in various outreach locations, including St Helen's, Huonville, Queenstown, Roseberry, Cygnet, Scottsdale, Smithton, Wynyard and Richmond. CatholicCare has delivered services to all areas of the state, including King island and Flinders Island.

Outreach services are usually available face-to-face and through a full range of telephone and video formats. Recently, due to social distancing, face-to-face, on-site visits are being supplemented with video calling or phone contact.

CatholicCare practitioners have been trained in Microsoft Teams and can use other platforms such as Zoom when required.

The majority of the organisation's counselling practitioners have undergraduate degrees in psychology, social work or other allied fields. As qualified and experienced professionals, with a minimum of three years' post-graduate experience in the field, many have in excess of 10-years' experience.

Although all counselling practitioners are generalist counsellors they also specialise in many fields including, couples counselling, family counselling, children's counselling, grief and bereavement to name a few.
